- I find software engineering the most appealing IT field. It's in high demand, providing many job opportunities and flexible career paths. However, a weakness is the need for continuous learning about new technologies to remain competitive in this fast-changing field. Possible job titles include full-stack developer, DevOps engineer, Chief Technology Officer, and engineering manager.
- Hi everyone! My name is Emily and I major in Cybersecurity.
- My technical strengths are programming, especially frontend development, and software applications. My technical weaknesses are anything statistical related such as data analysis and technical writing.
